MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

This dispute arises from a failed business relationship between a self-proclaimed movie producer, Gil Medina and his erstwhile friend and unwitting mark, well-known actor Danny Trejo. Though the Complaint itself is a meandering pleading, laden with invective, the facts it purports to advance are the very same facts plaintiffs advanced in a federal lawsuit in Utah, which was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction over a year ago.

More importantly, these same facts and claims are now being arbitrated before the Honorable Diane Wayne. And while not all the parties named in this action are presently in the arbitration, the very same common nucleus of operative facts and legal claims will be conclusively determined in that proceeding.

According to the Complaint, in 2006 novice Utah film producer Medina presented two contracts to A-list Hollywood star Danny Trejo that purported to give Medina complete control of Trejo’s career. One of these contracts contained a binding arbitration provision and thus, when the dispute inevitably manifested, Trejo demanded arbitration by which he seeks a judicial declaration that these contracts—the very ones at issue in this case—are unenforceable. The arbitrator is set to rule on a motion for summary adjudication this month and has scheduled a plenary hearing for June 2015 if the case is allowed to proceed.

For these reasons, this matter should be stayed in its entirety pending the outcome of the arbitration. Indeed, this lawsuit threatens to trammel the authority of the arbitrator, and if allowed to proceed would wholly undermine the federal policy in favor of arbitrating disputes. The present circumstances pose a clear risk of inconsistent rulings insofar as the very same facts and legal issues will be decided by the arbitrator and then, presumably, put to a jury in this case. This is a textbook example of a judicial proceeding that should be stayed pending the outcome of a related arbitration proceeding.

1 In the event this Court decides not to exercise its discretion to stay the matter, and 2 elects to consider the merits of this Complaint a dismissal is warranted.

3 The Complaint fails on its face to state any claims upon which relief may be granted 4 in this jurisdiction. First of all, the contracts upon which Plaintiffs base their claims are 5 simply too vague to be enforceable and clearly represent unlawful restraints of trade in 6 violation of California law. And since Plaintiffs assert a contractual relationship with 7 Trejo that is essentially unenforceable, they cannot seek tort relief against Defendants for 8 interference based on this relationship.

9 Plaintiffs have also failed to allege third-party relationships sufficient to support a 10 tortious interference claim under California (and Utah) law and have failed to allege that 11 their purported relationship with the Wozniaks was disrupted. What is more, to the extent 12 Plaintiffs allege that Defendants violated their exclusive right to produce a Trejo “vigilante 13 character” by conspiring to release the film “Machete” these claims are preempted by the 14 Copyright Act.

15 Plaintiffs’ claim for unjust enrichment is improper in that such a cause of action 16 does not exist in California. Finally, Plaintiffs’ cause of action for negligence presumes 17 that it is reasonable for an agent to have an affirmative duty to advocate for and protect the 18 rights of third-party producers. Since agents cannot possibly have such a special 19 relationship with both their clients and the producers with whom their clients do business 20 without violating their client’s confidences, they cannot be found negligent to Plaintiffs for 21 breaching such a duty.

22 Moreover, Federal Rule 8(a)(2) mandates a Complaint must state a “short and plain 23 statement” of the claims. Here the Complaint is a confused, stream-of-conscious narrative, 24 which obfuscates the factual basis of its claims. It is not a defendant’s job to surmise and 25 deduce what is being pled; rather it is the Plaintiff’s job to plead those claims through a 26 “short and plain statement.” Plaintiffs have failed to meet that burden.

27
28

1 All told, even assuming this Court decides to evaluate the merits of Plaintiff's 2 Complaint and opts not to stay the matter, the Complaint fails in every material respect to 3 state a claim or to even constitute a judicially cognizable pleading.

4 For these reasons—should the Court decide not to stay this matter pending 5 arbitration—the Complaint should be dismissed pursuant to 12(b)(6) and/or Rule 8(a)(2).

6 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

7 This action arises from an alleged contractual relationship (dubbed the 8 “VIGILANTE/TREJO FILM FRANCHISE” in the Complaint) between Plaintiffs and 9 motion picture actor Danny Trejo concerning the planned release of a series of “vigilante” 10 style action movies originally entitled “Jack’s Law,” and later “Vengeance.” (See Docket 11 No. 1, Complaint at ¶¶ 22, 24–25). In the instant lawsuit for tortious interference, unjust 12 enrichment, unfair competition and negligence, Plaintiffs allege that Defendants Hinojosa 13 and AEFH, Trejo’s talent agents, conspired with Defendant Robert Rodriguez and several 14 related production entities, to copy and interfere with Plaintiffs’ “Vengeance” franchise by 15 releasing two films entitled “Machete” and “Machete Kills.” (Id. at ¶¶ 30–33). Plaintiffs 16 further allege that Hinojosa and AEFH: (1) interfered with an alleged digital marketing 17 campaign for the Vengeance franchise featuring Steve Wozniak, the co-founder of Apple 18 (Id. at ¶¶ 47–50) by notifying him that Plaintiffs did not have a valid contractual 19 relationship with Trejo (Id. at ¶ 57); and (2) interfered with Plaintiffs’ relationships with 20 “potential exhibitors and distributors” of the initial Vengeance film. (Id. at ¶¶ 51–52, 90, 21 95). Plaintiffs allege that as a result of Defendants’ actions, their plans to market and 22 release “Vengeance” were “damaged” and that they lost “millions of dollars in revenues.”
23 (Id. at ¶¶ 52, 63).

24 Plaintiffs allege their relationship with Trejo is memorialized by “at least two 25 written documents, one dated April 25, 2006 and another dated July 22, 2006.” (Id. at ¶ 26 25). Though not included with the Complaint, these documents are attached to this Motion 27 in the Declaration of Stephen P. Crump as Exhibits 2 and 3, respectively. The April 25, 28

1 2006 document is titled a “Master License Agreement” (the “MLA”) and the July 22, 2006
2 document is titled “Agreement and Contract” between Medina and Trejo (the “Acting 3 Agreement”).

4 The Acting Agreement states Trejo agrees to “be the starring actor in the ‘Jack’s 5 Law’ films 1-5.” (See Declaration of Stephen Crump (“Crump Decl.”) at Ex. 3 (Acting 6 Agreement) at p. 1). Jack’s Law was to be the first film of a planned vigilante motion 7 picture franchise for which Medina was to be the writer, director and producer. (See 8 Complaint at ¶¶ 22, 24–25). This decidedly simplistic contract sets forth basic payment 9 terms for Trejo’s performances in each film in the “Jack’s Law” franchise and contains 10 what appears to be a liquidated damages provision if Trejo “breeches” [sic] the agreement.
11 (See Acting Agreement at p. 2). The Agreement purports to prohibit Trejo from “play[ing] 12 any vigilante characters that may hurt the ‘Jack’s Law’ films/properties or any films that 13 may be similar to ‘Jack’s Law’ to the public.” (See id. at p. 1).

14 The MLA, apparently entered several months prior to the Acting Agreement, 15 purports to be a carte blanche license between Trejo and “ITN, LLC” to use Trejo’s name 16 and likeness in connection with “all categories of goods and services.” (See Crump Decl.
17 at Ex. 2 (MLA), p. 1 ¶¶ 1–2). This document consists of a two-page agreement regarding 18 the “Basic Business Terms” (defined as the “Main Agreement”) as well as a six-page 19 “Standard Terms and Conditions.” In the Main Agreement, the MLA identifies an entity 20 named “ITN, LLC” as the Licensor, and Danny Trejo as the Licensee. (Id. at p. 1).

21 In the Main Agreement section, the MLA states that the Licensee (Trejo) is to pay 22 Licensor (ITN, LLC) a “royalty” of five percent of any and all proceeds from the use of his 23 name and likeness over an eleven (11) year term, later interlineated to eight (8) years. (See 24 id. p. 1). The Main Agreement fails to state whether the license is exclusive or non-25 exclusive.

26 The Standard Terms and Conditions, however, in contrast to the Main Agreement, 27 define ITN, LLC as the Licensee and Danny Trejo as the Licensor. And while they state

1 the terms of the Main Agreement govern any inconsistency between the two components, 2 they further provide that “[u]nless otherwise defined herein, Capitalized Terms used in 3 these Standard Terms and Conditions shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Main 4 Agreement.” (See id. at p. 3, ¶ 1) (emphasis added).

5 The Standard Terms and Conditions of the MLA state that Licensor (now defined as 6 Trejo) granted Licensee (now defined as ITN, LLC):

7 “[T]he irrevocable, unconditional and exclusive right to use the Property 8 for the Term in connection with the development, design, manufacture, 9 sale, distribution, publicizing, advertising, marketing, promotion and 10 exploiting of the Licensed Products for distribution within the Territory . .
11 . . .” (See id. at p. 3 ¶ 2).

12 The Licensed Products are defined in the Main Agreement as “any products and 13 services (i.e., all categories of goods and services” related to the “name . . . , image, 14 likeness, signature, endorsement, and voice of the celebrity Danny Trejo.” (See id. at p. 1, 15 ¶¶ 1–2). The Standard Terms and Conditions require that the Licensee (ITN, LLC) pay 16 Licensor the five percent royalty for its use of Trejo’s name, image and likeness on a 17 quarterly basis and keep written statements of account. (See id. at p. 3–4 ¶¶ 3(a), (c), (d)).

18 The MLA contains an integration clause stating that the agreement “represents the 19 sole and entire agreement between the parties hereto, and supersedes all prior 20 representations, negotiations, promises, understandings or agreements, whether oral or 21 written, between the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof,” (Id. at p. 9 ¶ 12(q)) 22 and an arbitration provision stating that “[a]ny claim or controversy arising out of related 23 to this Agreement, including the issue of arbitrability of any such claim or controversy, 24 shall be resolved solely and completely by mandatory, final, binding and non-appealable 25 arbitration.” (Id. at p. 8 ¶ 12(g)).

26 After Plaintiffs attempted to bring a substantially identical action based on these 27 agreements against Defendants in Utah in January 29 of 2013, (ITN Flix, LLC v.

1 Rodriguez, et al., USDC District of Utah Case No. 1:13-cv-00022-DBP), the Utah District
2 Court dismissed the matter for lack of personal jurisdiction (Id., Docket No. 146).

3 On April 10, 2014, Trejo filed a demand for arbitration with JAMS against 4 Plaintiffs under the terms of the MLA, seeking a declaration regarding the “existence, 5 scope, efficacy, legality and enforceability of the [MLA] as well as the parties’ rights, 6 duties and obligations thereunder,” as well as claims for fraudulent inducement and 7 tortious interference on the part of Plaintiffs related to the MLA. (Crump Decl. at ¶ 2, Ex.
8 1). Trejo has filed a motion for summary adjudication on the grounds that the MLA and 9 Acting Agreement are unenforceable as a matter of law, set to be heard on January 29, 10 2015. (Id. at ¶ 3). The plenary hearing on the remaining triable issues is set for June 9-11 11 before the Honorable Diane Wayne (Ret.). (Id.).

12 III. LEGAL ARGUMENT

13 A. This Entire Matter Should Be Stayed Pending the Conclusion of the 14 Arbitration Between Plaintiffs and Trejo.

15 This matter should be stayed pending the outcome of binding arbitration between 16 Plaintiffs and Trejo, signatories of the MLA, pursuant to both the Federal Arbitration Act 17 (the “FAA”) and this Court’s inherent power to control its docket.

18 This Court has two available grounds under the circumstances to place a stay on the 19 instant litigation in deference to the ongoing arbitration between Plaintiffs and Trejo.

20 First, if a lawsuit against a non-signatory (here Hinojosa and AEFH, along with 21 remaining Defendants) is based upon the same operative facts and is inherently 22 inseparable from a claim against a signatory to an arbitration agreement, the district court 23 has discretion under the FAA to grant a stay if continuing the suit would undermine the 24 arbitration proceedings and thwart the federal policy in favor of arbitration. Hill v. GE 25 Power Sys., Inc., 282 F.3d 343, 347 (5th Cir. 2002) (cited by T-Mobile United States, Inc.
26 v. Montijo, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 176236 at *16–17 (W.D. Wash. Dec. 11, 2012)
27 (granting stay); Ballard v. Corinthian Colleges, Inc., 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57699 at *6

1 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 16, 2006) (granting stay); Amisil Holdings Ltd. v. Clarium Capital
2 Mgmt., LLC, 622 F. Supp. 2d 825, 842 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (citing with approval)).

3       In Hill, a power company brought an action against its financial advisor for 4 tortiously interfering with prospective business relations with its former partner and third 5 parties, among other claims. Id. at 345–346. Though the plaintiff did not have an 6 arbitration agreement with the financial advisor, it had a written contract and arbitration 7 provision with its former partner. Id. Plaintiff alleged that the financial advisor acted in 8 concert with its former partner to sabotage its contract and other prospective business 9 relations. Id. at 348. The Fifth Circuit held that permitting the plaintiff’s suit to go 10 forward against the advisor at the same time as an arbitration would “undermine the 11 arbitration proceedings between [plaintiff] and [its former partner], thereby thwarting the 12 federal policy in favor of arbitration”—and affirmed a stay of litigation until the arbitration 13 could conclude. Id.

14       At present, Plaintiffs allege Hinojosa and AEFH interfered with their contractual 15 relationships with the Wozniaks and potential exhibitors and distributors of their Trejo 16 “vigilante film.” (Complaint at ¶¶ 89–100). Plaintiffs further assert unjust enrichment and 17 unfair competition under the Lanham Act and negligence based on the allegation that 18 Hinojosa and AEFH had an “affirmative duty” to notify third parties about ITN’s 19 agreement with Trejo. (Id. at ¶¶ 101–108, 112–116). Crucially, each of these claims is 20 based, at least in large part, on ITN’s alleged exclusive right to Trejo’s name and likeness 21 under the MLA. (See id. at ¶¶ 42, 57).

22       Hinojosa and AEFH’s allegedly wrongful acts and omissions—making false 23 representations to third-parties concerning ITN’s relationship with Trejo, conspiring with 24 Rodriguez et al. to interfere with ITN’s exclusive rights to Trejo, and failing to notify 25 third-parties of ITN’s rights—all are intimately tied with a determination that ITN has 26 enforceable rights under the MLA in the first place. If ITN does not in fact possess the 27 exclusive rights it says it does—then the release of “Machete” and Hinojosa’s alleged 28

1 representations regarding Trejo’s contractual relationships cannot be wrongful. This is 2 precisely the issue currently being decided before JAMS in the pending arbitration 3 between Trejo, ITN and Medina. Proceeding with this litigation and allowing Plaintiffs to 4 pursue tort claims based on the MLA (and the Acting Agreement) before the arbitrator can 5 rule on their validity undermines the arbitration process and thwarts the federal policies 6 behind the FAA. The entire matter should be stayed on this ground alone.

7 As an additional basis for staying this litigation, this Court can also look to its 8 inherent power to control its docket. A district court may exercise its discretion under this 9 ground to stay litigation against non-signatories to an arbitration agreement pending the 10 outcome of an active arbitration. See Moses H. Cone Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Corp., 460 11 U.S. 1, 20 n.23 (1983); see also Landis v. N. Am. Co., 299 U.S. 248, 254–255 (1936). A 12 party seeking a stay on these grounds “must make out a clear case of hardship or inequity 13 in being required to go forward, if there is even a fair possibility that the stay for which he 14 prays will work damage to someone else.” Landis, 299 U.S. at 25. “A stay should not be 15 granted unless it appears likely the other proceedings will be concluded within a 16 reasonable time in relation to the urgency of the claims presented to the court.” Leyva v.
17 Certified Grocers of California, Ltd., 593 F.2d 857, 864 (9th Cir. 1979). A court need not 18 speculate on the outcome of arbitration or resolve the question of collateral estoppel to 19 determine whether a stay is appropriate. Fallon v. Locke, Liddell & Sapp, LLP, 2007 U.S.
20 Dist. LEXIS 76828 at *10 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 2, 2007).

21 In this case, a stay is unlikely to work damage on Plaintiffs. They have already 22 been engaged in arbitration with Trejo concerning the legitimacy and enforceability of the 23 agreements upon which they base their claims since April of 2014. A stay of the instant 24 proceedings will not impact their ability to obtain a ruling from arbitrator by June of this 25 year, at the latest (when the arbitration hearing is currently scheduled). For this reason, a 26 stay would be of a reasonably finite length in order to allow the arbitration to conclude.
27 On the other hand, regardless of the preclusive effect of the arbitrator’s ruling, a failure to 28

1 stay this action based on the agreements at issue in the arbitration may lead to inconsistent 2 findings which will hinder the pursuit of judicial efficiency in general. See Bischoff v.
3 DirecTV, Inc., 180 F. Supp. 2d 1097, 1114–1115 (C.D. Cal. 2002)).

4 For these reasons, this action should be stayed pending the resolution of the 5 arbitration.

6 B. Each Cause of Action Against Hinojosa and AEFH Should Be Dismissed 7 On the Grounds That the Contracts Purporting to Form the Basis For 8 Plaintiffs’ Rights are Too Vague to be Enforced.

9 As the scope of the rights and obligations under the Acting Agreement and MLA, 10 the written agreements allegedly forming the basis for the “VIGILANTE/TREJO FILM 11 FRANCHISE,” are not defined sufficiently enough to provide a court with a rational basis 12 for the assessment of damages, they are fatally uncertain and incapable of enforcement 13 under California law. Thus, they cannot provide the basis for Plaintiffs’ tort claims.<sup>1</sup>

14 California Civil Code section 1598 provides that “[w]here contract has but a single 15 object, and such object is . . . so vaguely expressed as to be wholly unascertainable, the 16 entire contract is void.” “Although the terms of a contract need not be stated in the 17 minutest detail, it is requisite to enforceability that it must evidence a meeting of the minds 18 upon the essential features of the agreement, and that the scope of the duty and limits of 19 acceptable performance be at least sufficiently defined to provide a rational basis for the 20 assessment of damages.” Robinson & Wilson, Inc. v. Stone, 35 Cal. App. 3d 396, 407 21 (1973) (citing Ellis v. Klaff, 96 Cal. App. 2d 471, 478 (1950)) (emphasis added).

22 The key terms of both agreements that are the subject of this action are fatally 23 vague and incapable of enforcement:

24 ///

26 <sup>1</sup> The Ninth Circuit has held that “documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint and whose 27 authenticity no party questions, but which are not physically attached to the pleading, may be considered in 28 a ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss” without converting it into a motion for summary judgment.
Branch v. Tunnell, 14 F.3d 449, 454 (9th Cir. 1994) (overruled on other grounds).

1                   1.     *The Acting Agreement.

2           The key provision in the Acting Agreement Plaintiffs attempt to enforce in this 3 litigation dictates that actor Danny Trejo cannot appear in features as a “vigilante 4 character” or films similar to the “Jack’s Law” [now “Vengeance”] franchise “to the 5 public.” (See Crump Decl. Ex. 3 at p. 1). The contract fails, however, to provide any 6 guidance as to what exactly a “vigilante character” is and the threshold of similarity to 7 constitute a breach.

8           An amorphous promise not to appear in features as a “vigilante character” or films 9 similar to the “Jack’s Law” franchise “to the public” cannot rise to the level of a 10 contractual duty. For example, by what standard would a court or a jury determine that 11 Trejo acted in a role that is considered to be a “vigilante” or in a film that is “similar” to 12 Jack’s Law? Is Trejo also prohibited from playing a vigilante’s trusted friend and 13 sidekick?<sup>2</sup> A hitman for a CIA agent?<sup>3</sup> A contract killer?<sup>4</sup> These are all roles which Trejo 14 has performed in that could arguably be defined as vigilante characters and/or films but 15 which otherwise have no apparent plot similarities to Jack’s Law, in which an ex-cop seeks 16 revenge for his dead wife. Indeed, the nature of the Trejo’s obligation, so vaguely defined 17 in the Acting Agreement, provides no rational method for determining whether Trejo is in 18 breach of the Agreement in the abstract. It should fail on this basis alone, and Plaintiffs 19 should be foreclosed from seeking tort claims based on this agreement.

20                   2.     *The MLA.

21           The MLA is rife with inconsistencies to the point of rendering it impossible to form 22 the basis of a contractual relationship. A host of inconsistently defined terms and 23 suspicious interlineations leave Trejo unable to ascertain the entity with which he 24 purportedly contracted, and which contracted party owes obligations to the other.

26 <sup>2</sup> Inferno (1999), http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Inferno\_\(1999\_film\)), starring Jean-Claude van Damme, co-
starring Danny Trejo.

27 <sup>3</sup> Once Upon a Time in Mexico (2003), http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Once\_Upon\_a\_Time\_in\_Mexico.

28 <sup>4</sup> The Replacement Killers (1998), http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The\_Replacement\_Killers.

1 First and foremost, the MLA, which purports to be an eight-year license of Trejo’s 2 celebrity identity, was executed by an entity (ITN, LLC) that apparently does not exist in 3 any jurisdiction. The MLA goes on to define Trejo as the “Licensee” in the Main 4 Agreement (the heads of terms), yet it identifies him as the “Licensor” in the signature 5 block and in Paragraph 1 of the Standard Terms and Conditions. (Compare Crump Decl.
 6 Ex. 2 p. 1 ¶ 1 with p. 3 ¶ 1). As a result, it is unclear whether ITN, LLC owes Trejo a five 7 percent (5%) royalty for its licensed use of Trejo’s name and likeness, or if Trejo owes 8 ITN, LLC a five percent (5%) commission on all uses of his name and likeness. (Id. p. 3 ¶ 9 3(a)).

10 The Main Agreement, which supposedly set forth the specific terms of the 11 arrangement, is notably silent as to the exclusivity of this license, while in contrast the 12 Standard Terms and Conditions states the license is in fact exclusive. (Compare id. p. 1 13 with p. 3 ¶ 2). (The MLA provides that the Main Agreement is to control in any 14 inconsistency). (Id. p. 3 ¶ 1). Taken as a whole, these inconsistencies in a purported the 15 material terms of which are virtually unascertainable. With the combination of facial 16 inconsistencies as to the scope of the MLA, it cannot form the basis for tort relief.

17 C. Each Cause of Action Against Hinojosa and AEFH Should Be Dismissed 18 On the Grounds the Contracts Purporting to Form the Basis For 19 Plaintiffs’ Rights are Unenforceable Restraints on Trade.

20 In California, “[e]very contract by which anyone is restrained from engaging in a 21 lawful profession, trade, or business of any kind is to that extent void.” Cal. Bus. & Prof.
 22 Code § 16600; see id. §§ 16601–16603. California courts have “consistently affirmed that 23 section 16600 evinces a settled legislative policy in favor of open competition and 24 employee mobility,” and such a law protects “the important legal right of persons to 25 engage in businesses and occupations of their choosing.” Edwards v. Arthur Anderson 26 LLP, 44 Cal. 4th 937, 946 (2008).

27
 28

1 Both the Acting Agreement and the MLA blatantly violate this long-enshrined 2 California policy on their face.

3 I. The Acting Agreement.

4 The Acting Agreement, for one, contains a broad prohibition preventing Trejo from 5 playing “any vigilante characters that may hurt the ‘Jack’s Law’ films/properties,” as well 6 as appearing in “any films that may be similar to ‘Jack’s Law’ to the public.” (See Crump 7 Decl. Ex. 3, p. 1) (emphasis added). The provision contains no temporal or geographic 8 limitations, fails to define what a “vigilante character” is and fails to define what “may” 9 constitute a film similar to ‘Jack’s Law’ “to the public.”

10 The case of KGB, Inc. v. Giannoulas, 104 Cal. App. 3d 844 (1980), involves 11 analogous facts. In KGB, a radio station sought an injunction to enforce a contractual non-12 compete provision prohibiting a performer from appearing anywhere in a chicken outfit 13 similar to one which he wore while serving as the station’s mascot. Id. at 846–847.
14 Citing Business and Professions Code section 16600, the Court of Appeals held that such 15 an injunction, even when tailored to a specific type of “chicken” mascot performance, 16 invalidly restricted the performer’s “vital right” to earn a living and to express himself as 17 an artist. See id. at 847–850. Notably this restriction did not hamper the performer’s right 18 to perform as any mascot, but restricted his right to perform as a specific type of mascot.
19 This too, was an invalid restraint of trade under California’s broad statutory ban. Id.; see 20 also Chamberlain v. Augustine, 172 Cal. 285, 289 (1916) (“The statute makes no 21 exception in favor of contracts only in partial restraint of trade.”)

22 Here, the contractual provision is arguably even broader than the injunction sought 23 in KGB. Not only is Trejo prevented from appearing as a particular category of character-24 type (the “vigilante”), he is prevented from appearing in any films adjudged under some 25 undefined “public” standard to be similar to the film “Jack’s Law”—which could arguably 26 include non-vigilante roles. It is impossible to determine what engagements Medina 27 would consider to be a breach of the contract. Given that this chills Trejo’s rights to 28

1 engage in his primary profession without first consulting Medina, this vague, broadly
 2 written provision is an invalid restraint of trade under California and the entire agreement 3 is void and unenforceable. It follows then that Plaintiffs cannot base tort claims for 4 interference with this agreement.

5                   2.     The MLA.

6             Similar to the Acting Agreement, the MLA contains a broad covenant not to 7 compete:

8             “Licensor hereby grants to Licensee the irrevocable, unconditional and 9 exclusive right to use the Property [The name (including all derivations and 10 abbreviations thereof), image, likeness, signature, endorsement, and voice 11 of the celebrity Danny Trejo] for the Term [8 years] in connection with the 12 development, design, manufacture, sale, distribution, publicizing, advertising, marketing, promotion and exploiting of the Licensed Products [all goods and services] for distribution within the Territory [Worldwide].”
 (Crump Decl. Ex. 2 p. 3 ¶ 2).

13             “During the Term, Trejo shall not endorse, advertise, lend his name or 14 likeness to, or otherwise become associated with any other product or service.” (Id. p. 5 ¶ 6(e)) (emphasis added).

15             Assuming the silence of the heads of terms implies an exclusive license,<sup>5</sup> the MLA 16 purportedly gives ITN, LLC the exclusive right to use Trejo’s name, image, likeness and 17 voice in connection with every good and service under the sun—including motion 18 pictures—in effect denying Trejo the right to seek his own employment in the entire 19 entertainment business for a total of eight (8) years without paying ITN, LLC a toll for 20 doing so. The provision does not contain any reasonable limitation on scope of work, and 21 no geographical limitation.

22             In addition, the MLA on its face gives Plaintiffs the exclusive right to receive 23 payment for Trejo’s services and pay him therefor. (Id. Ex. 2 ¶ 3). This essentially forces 24

 26 <sup>5</sup> Actually, the silence of the Main Agreement portion of the MLA implies a non-exclusive license. In 27 copyright law, for example, an exclusive license is a property right that can only be conveyed in a specific 28 writing. If the MLA is ultimately determined to be non-exclusive, as it should be, then Defendants would not be acting in violation of Plaintiffs’ rights.

1 Trejo into a modern-day indentured servitude, where his ability to pursue any 2 engagement—or payment for that engagement—is subject to Respondents’ whim.

3 As set forth many years ago in the Chamberlain case, California’s broad restriction 4 on covenants not to compete does not leave an exception open for partial restraints of 5 trade. See supra subsection (C)(1). Thus, charging a fee or commission to a party for 6 engaging in his trade or profession is as much of a violation as an outright prohibition.
7 Gordon Termite Control v. Terrones, 84 Cal. App. 3d 176, 179 (1978) (requirement that 8 defendant to pay plaintiff $50 per solicited pest removal account invalid); accord 9 Chamberlain, 172 Cal. at 288 (agreement to pay liquidated damages to the purchasers if 10 employee worked for a competitor invalid); Muggill v. Reuben H. Donnelley Corp., 62 11 Cal. 2d 239, 243 (1965) (same, agreement to forfeit pension rights). Moreover, a party 12 may not simply seek to “reform” a restraint of trade by construing it more narrowly in its 13 allegations or arguments to the court. See Kolani v. Gluska, 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 407– 14 408 (1998) (holding that trial court properly concluded that it should not rewrite a broad 15 covenant not to compete into a narrower bar on theft of confidential information). As the 16 MLA constitutes an unenforceable restraint on trade, Plaintiffs should be foreclosed from 17 basing their tort claims against Hinojosa and AEFH thereon.

18 D. ITN Fails to State a Claim for Tortious Interference With Prospective
19 Economic Relations Against Hinojosa and AEFH Under Either 20 California or Utah Law.

21 In their causes of action for intentional interference with economic advantage, 22 Plaintiffs allege Hinojosa and AEFH interfered with “existing and prospective economic 23 relationships with a probability of future benefit, including without limitation with the 24 Wozniaks, and potential exhibitors and distributors of the VIGILANTE/TREJO FILM.” 25 (Complaint at ¶¶ 95–97).<sup>6</sup>

26
27 <sup>6</sup> Similarly, in their fourth claim for relief for intentional interference with economic relations under Utah 28 common law, Plaintiffs allege that Hinojosa and AEFH interfered with “actual and/or prospective

1 As an initial matter, Plaintiffs' cause of action under Utah common law should be 2 stricken as superfluous. As Utah and California base their claims for economic 3 interference on the same jurisprudence, there is no conflict of law and the Court should 4 apply forum law under California conflicts analysis.

5 Substantively, Plaintiffs fail to allege an actionable tortious interference claim 6 against Hinojosa and/or AEFH on the basis of either purported relationship. In the case of 7 their alleged relationship with the Wozniaks, Plaintiffs fail to allege how they were harmed 8 as a result of Defendants' interference. In the case of their alleged relationships with 9 "potential exhibitors and distributors" of Jack's Law, Plaintiffs have utterly failed to 10 allege: (1) a viable prospective relationship with said exhibitors and distributors; and (2) 11 how Hinojosa and/or AEFH interfered with these relationships, even if any were 12 adequately alleged.

13 1. As There is No Conflict Between Utah and California Law 14 Regarding Tortious Interference, Plaintiffs' Utah Claim is 15 Superfluous and Should Be Dismissed and/or Stricken Under Rule 16 12.

17 To determine the applicable substantive law in a case, a federal court sitting in 18 diversity applies the choice-of-law rules of the forum. Narayan v. EGL, Inc., 616 F.3d 19 895, 898 (9th Cir. 2010). In California, courts employ a three-part governmental analysis 20 test carrying a presumption that California law applies. Marsh v. Burrell, 805 F. Supp.
 21 1493, 1496 (N.D. Cal. 1992) (citing Hurtado v. Sup. Ct., 11 Cal. 3d 574, 581 (1974) and 22 Beech Aircraft Corp. v. Sup. Ct., 61 Cal. App. 3d 501, 522 (1976)). Thus, the proponent of 23 a foreign state's law must bear the burden of showing "a compelling reason justifying 24 displacement of California law." Id. (citing McGhee v. Arabian Am. Oil Co., 871 F.2d 25 1412, 1422 (9th Cir. 1989)).

26
 27 economic relationships, including without limitation with the Wozniaks, and potential exhibitors and 28 distributors of the VIGILANTE/TREJO FILM." (Complaint at ¶¶ 90–91).

1           When neither party identifies a meaningful conflict between California law and the 2 law of another state, there is no conflict and California courts will apply California law as 3 the forum law. Casey v. Olson, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 93222 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 7, 2010) 4 (citing Homedics, Inc. v. Valley Forge Ins. Co., 315 F.3d 1135, 1138 (9th Cir. 2003)); see 5 also Hurtado, 11 Cal. 3d at 580 (“The fact that two states are involved does not in itself
6 indicate that there is a ‘conflict of laws’ or ‘choice of law’ problem. There is obviously no 7 problem where the laws of the two states are identical.”)

8           Plaintiffs have alleged claims both for “Tortious Interference with Economic 9 Relations” under “Utah Common Law” (See Complaint at ¶¶ 89–93) and “Intentional 10 Interference with Prospective Economic Advantage” under “California Common Law.” 11 (See id. at ¶¶ 94–100). To state a claim for tortious interference with prospective 12 economic advantage in California, a plaintiff must prove that: (1) the plaintiff and a third 13 party were in an economic relationship that probably would have resulted in an economic 14 benefit to plaintiff; (2) defendant knew of the relationship; (3) defendant engaged in 15 specific wrongful conduct intended to disrupt the relationship; (4) the relationship was 16 disrupted; and (5) plaintiff was harmed as a result of this conduct. Youst v. Longo, 43 Cal.
17 3d 64, 71 n.6 (1987).

18           Similarly, in a Utah tortious interference claim, a plaintiff must prove that: (1) the 19 defendant intentionally interfered with the plaintiff’s existing or potential economic 20 relations; (2) for an improper purpose or by improper means; (3) causing injury to the 21 plaintiff. Leigh Furniture & Carpet Co. v. Isom, 657 P.2d 293, 302 (Utah 1982) (citing 22 Rest. 2d Torts § 766B and Buckaloo v. Johnson, 14 Cal. 3d 815 (1975)).

23           In all aspects relevant here, both states follow the same “Oregon” definition of the 24 tort. See, e.g., Leigh Furniture & Carpet Co., 657 P.2d at 302–304 (citing Top Service 25 Body Shop, Inc. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 582 P.2d 1365 (Or. 1978) and discussing history of 26 tort in Utah); Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, USA, 11 Cal. 4th 376, 386–392 (1995) 27 (same, in California).

1 Thus, other than strict syntactical differences in the elements to be pled, there is no 2 discernible difference between California and Utah causes of action for tortious 3 interference with prospective economic relations. Since there is no conflict of law, this 4 Court should apply California law to Plaintiffs' claims for tortious interference as the 5 forum law. Plaintiffs' Utah claim is redundant and impertinent and should be stricken 6 from the pleading under Rule 12(f) and/or dismissed on this ground under Rule 12(b)(6) 7 for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

8 2. Plaintiffs Have Failed to Allege How the Alleged Disruption of the 9 Wozniak Relationship Damaged Them.

10 With respect to their claim that Hinojosa and AEFH allegedly interfered with their 11 relationship with the Wozniaks, Plaintiffs have failed to allege how Hinojosa's purported 12 statements resulted in damage to them.

13 Plaintiffs allege that Hinojosa warned the Wozniaks against dealing with Medina 14 (Complaint at ¶ 57) and that these statements eventually led the Wozniaks to "withdraw 15 active marketing and promotional support for the App Game," which was designed to 16 promote Jack's Law, "on a date that was no earlier than November 18, 2012." (Complaint 17 at ¶¶ 50, 61). However, crucially, the Complaint alleges that the App Game was in fact 18 released several days later on November 22 anyway, and "prominently features the 19 Wozniak's personas, and remains available on iTunes even to this day." (Complaint at ¶ 20 61; see also ¶ 49) (emphasis added). According to Plaintiffs' own allegations then, 21 nothing said or done by Hinojosa had any impact on the release of the App Game and the 22 fulfillment of Plaintiffs' agreement with the Wozniaks. In sum, other than the conclusory 23 assertion that they "lost millions of dollars as a result," (Complaint at ¶ 63), Plaintiffs fail 24 to draw any connection between the Wozniaks' alleged withdrawal of support (which 25 apparently had no impact on the App Game) and any damages. Any economic 26 interference claim premised on statements to the Wozniaks must consequently fail as pled.

1                   3. Plaintiffs Have Failed to Allege Any Film Distributor or Exhibitor 2                   Relationships With Probable Economic Benefit.

3                   With regard to Plaintiffs’ so-called relationships with potential film distributors and 4 exhibitors which allegedly fell victim to the interfering acts of Hinojosa and AEFH, the 5 Complaint fails to allege anything substantial enough to form the basis for a tortious 6 interference claim.

7                   In California, a plaintiff asserting a claim for tortious interference must allege more 8 than just a “speculative” relationship with a “future” business partner. Roth v. Rhodes, 25 9 Cal. App. 4th 530, 546 (1994). In Roth, the plaintiff attempted to predicate a tortious 10 interference claim on the loss of potential, future patients. Id. Similarly here, Plaintiffs 11 allege that vaguely that they “were able to negotiate potential agreements with theatrical 12 exhibitors and other distributors for a meaningful commercial release of the 13 VIGILANTE/TREJO FILM.” (Complaint at ¶ 51). Plaintiffs’ “potential relationships” 14 with certain unnamed third-parties does not rise to the level of either an existing contract 15 or a prospective relationship carrying a “probability” of economic benefit. Consequently, 16 like the allegations in Roth, this relationship cannot support the basis for a tortious 17 interference claim either.

18                   4. Plaintiffs Have Failed to Allege How Hinojosa and/or AEFH 19                   Interfered With Any Film Distributor or Exhibitor Relationships.

20                   Even if Plaintiffs successfully alleged an economic relationship with the so-called 21 theatrical exhibitors and distributors, they have notably failed to allege anywhere in their 22 lengthy Complaint how Hinojosa or AEFH actually interfered with these relationships.

23                   Plaintiffs allege in paragraph 97 of the Complaint that Hinojosa and AEFH 24 “engaged in conduct amounting to injurious interference with PLAINTIFFS’ existing and 25 prospective economic relationships.” However, Plaintiffs cannot point to a single act of 26 “specific wrongful conduct” which supports this conclusory allegation.

1 What is more, in the morass of allegations that make up the Complaint, Plaintiffs 2 fail even to allege that either Hinojosa or AEFH even possessed knowledge about these 3 supposed relationships. Indeed, other than the conclusory allegation in paragraph 97, the 4 only mention in the factual allegations is the conclusory statement that Hinojosa 5 “colluded” and “conspired” with Rodriguez to “destroy” Plaintiffs’ marketing and release 6 strategy for Jack’s Law. (Complaint at ¶ 55). Nowhere in the pleading is it alleged how 7 Hinojosa and AEFH interfered with these relationships. As such, Plaintiffs have failed to 8 state a claim for tortious interference based on their alleged relationships with potential 9 film distributors and exhibitors.

10 E. The Fifth, Sixth and Ninth Causes of Action for Unjust Enrichment, 11 Violation of Lanham Act Section 43(a) and Negligence are Preempted by 12 the Copyright Act to the Extent They are Based on Defendants’ Alleged 13 Conspiracy to Release “Machete” Without Plaintiffs’ Authorization.

14 The Copyright Act preempts state law claims when: (1) the state law rights asserted 15 “are equivalent to any of the exclusive rights within the general scope of copyright as 16 specified by section 106 in works of authorship that are fixed in a tangible medium of 17 expression”; and (2) the work in question “come[s] within the subject matter of copyright 18 as specified by sections 102 and 103.” 17 U.S.C. § 301.

19 The Copyright Act grants an owner the exclusive right “to reproduce the 20 copyrighted work in copies” and “to prepare derivative works based upon the copyrighted 21 work.” 17 U.S.C. § 106. Any cause of action based on these rights amounts to the 22 equivalent of a copyright claim. Kodadek v. MTV Networks, 152 F.3d 1209, 1213 (9th Cir.
 23 Cal. 1998) (unfair competition claim based on distribution of creative material allegedly 24 infringing on copyright of plaintiff is preempted).

25 The Copyright Act grants an owner the exclusive right “to reproduce the 26 copyrighted work in copies,” “to prepare derivative works based upon the copyrighted 27 work,” and to authorize third-parties to do the same. 17 U.S.C. § 106. Any cause of action 28

1 based on these rights amounts to the equivalent of a copyright claim. Kodadek, 152 F.3d
2 at 1213 (9th Cir. Cal. 1998) (unfair competition claim based on distribution of creative 3 material allegedly infringing on copyright of plaintiff is preempted).

4 At bar, the unfair competition, violation of Lanham Act Section 43(a) and 5 negligence claims merely restate copyright infringement claims to the extent they rely 6 upon an alleged misappropriation of the Trejo vigilante character from “Vengeance”. The 7 Complaint alleges in part that Hinojosa and AEFH either copied or created a derivative of 8 Medina’s copyrighted “Trejo-centered vigilante franchise,” “without dealing with or even 9 contacting [Medina].” (See Complaint at ¶¶ 36, 41). This essentially amounts to the 10 unauthorized “tak[ing] the opportunity of a Trejo vigilante action franchise,” implicating 11 the exclusive right to prevent others from using a copyright. (See Complaint at ¶¶ 35–36, 12 63-64). Thus, to the extent that Medina alleges personal harm and/or improper benefits 13 accrued by Hinojosa and AEFH from the purportedly unauthorized copying or derivation 14 of the Trejo vigilante character from “Vengeance,” Medina inextricably asserts rights 15 equivalent to those within scope of the Copyright Act.

16 Further, it is well settled that motion pictures fall within the subject matter of 17 copyright. See Melchior v. New Line Prod., Inc., 106 Cal. App. 4th 779, 792 (2003).
18 Through their causes of action for unfair competition, violation of Lanham Act Section 19 43(a) and negligence, Plaintiffs seek to protect their rights to the “Vengeance” motion 20 picture franchise and the characters therein. (See Complaint at ¶¶ 35–37, 63). This places 21 the subject matter of the Complaint squarely within that covered by copyright.
22 Accordingly, Plaintiff’s sixth, seventh and ninth causes of action should be dismissed 23 under the doctrine of preemption to the extent they assert rights equivalent to those within 24 the general scope of copyright, and pertain to works within the subject matter of copyright.

25 F. A Cause of Action for Unjust Enrichment Does Not Exist Under 26 California Law.

27 Plaintiffs’ claim for unjust enrichment must also fail because California does not 28

1 recognize this claim as a stand-alone cause of action, but rather a general principle 2 underlying various doctrines and remedies. See Jogani v. Sup. Ct., 165 Cal. App. 4th 901, 3 911 (2008) (“Under California law, a claim for unjust enrichment cannot stand alone as an 4 independent claim for relief); Melchior v. New Line Prod., Inc., 106 Cal. App. 4th 779, 5 793 (2003); see also Cheramie v. HBB, LLC, 545 Fed. Appx. 626, 628 (2013) (affirming 6 dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6)); Falk v. General Motors Corp., 496 F. Supp. 2d 1088, 1093 7 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (same). Hence, Plaintiffs’ cause of action for unjust enrichment cannot 8 survive the pleading stage and should be dismissed with prejudice.

9 G. The Ninth Cause of Action for Negligence Should Be Dismissed For 10 Failure to State A Claim Because no Special Relationship is Alleged to 11 Support a Duty of Care.

12 Plaintiffs base their cause of action for negligence upon Hinojosa and AEFH’s 13 alleged breach of duties of care “to inquire with PLAINTIFFS . . . about the nature and 14 meaning of PLAINTIFFS’ contractual and economic relationship with PLAINTIFFS” and 15 to “make disclosures to others PLAINTIFFS’ rights.” (Complaint at ¶ 113). However, 16 these affirmative obligations cannot be the basis of a negligence claim as Plaintiffs have 17 failed to allege the requisite special relationship between themselves, Hinojosa and AEFH.

18 Ordinarily, a person is not liable in tort merely for failure to take affirmative action 19 to assist or protect another, no matter how great the danger in which the other is placed, or 20 how easily he could be rescued, unless there is a special relationship between them which 21 gives rise to a duty to act. Richards v. Stanley, 43 Cal.2d 60, 65 (1954); Schauf v.
 22 Southern Cal. Edison Co., 243 Cal. App. 2d 453, 463 (1966).

23 No court in this jurisdiction has held that an agent holds an affirmative duty to 24 inquire with producers about their rights with respect to a client and make disclosures to 25 third-parties about those producer’s rights. Although doubtless a talent agent possesses a 26 special relationship with her client leading to such affirmative duties, it is precisely 27 because of this relationship that an agent cannot also share such a heightened duty with 28

1 third-parties with whom it negotiates on its client’s behalf. Holding agents to such a duty 2 would constitute a fundamental conflict of interest and chill their effectiveness at procuring 3 employment for their clients.

4 Since Plaintiffs cannot plead a special relationship between themselves and the 5 agents for Danny Trejo, Hinojosa and AEFH, they cannot hold them to an affirmative duty 6 of care such as alleged in the Complaint and their cause of action for negligence should 7 accordingly be dismissed.

8 H. The Action Should Be Dismissed For Failure to Comply With Federal 9 Pleading Standards Under Rule 8(a)(2).

10 Regardless of the legal sufficiency of Plaintiffs’ claims against Hinojosa and AEFH, 11 the Complaint should be dismissed for failure to satisfy the pleading standards of Fed. R.
12 Civ. P. 8(a)(2). Rule 8(a)(2) requires a complaint to contain a “short and plain statement 13 of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” See also McHenry v. Renne, 84 14 F.3d 1172, 1178 (9th Cir. 1996) (a complaint should state each of its claims with 15 simplicity, directness, and clarity). “Verbose, confusing and almost entirely conclusory” 16 complaints run afoul of this rule. See Nevijel v. North Coast Life Ins. Co., 651 F.2d 671, 17 674 (9th Cir. 1981) (Ninth Circuit affirmed dismissal of complaint that was 23 pages long 18 with 24 pages of addenda). Dismissal is warranted when a complaint prevents a defendant 19 from knowing the crux of claims leveled against them. Seto v. Thielen, 519 Fed. Appx.
20 966, 969 (9th Cir. 2013).

21 Here, as in Nevijel, the Complaint contains a rambling narrative filled with 22 countless, often conclusory allegations. Plaintiffs’ stream of conscience pleading features 23 numerous single sentences that comprise nearly entire pages of text. (See Complaint at ¶¶ 24 46, 58). Further, the Complaint delves into years of background details that apparently 25 bear no connection to the operative allegations. (See id. at ¶¶ 43–46). Such a meandering 26 discourse makes it nearly impossible to pinpoint the actions claimed to constitute the 27 alleged injurious conduct.

1 By way of example, the Sixth Claim For Relief purportedly to states a claim for 2 “Unjust Enrichment,” but the Complaint rambles through pages and pages of conspiracy 3 theory without articulating why equity supports Defendants owing restitution to Plaintiffs.
4 (See id. at ¶¶ 30–46, 55–64). The Sixth Claim for Relief itself merely contains a single 5 statement that “Defendants have received benefits and unjustly retained them at the 6 expense of Plaintiffs,” leaving Hinojosa and AEFH with no way of determining which 7 conduct supposedly caused this alleged harm to arise. (Id. at ¶ 102).

8 To cite another example, the Fifth Claim of Relief contains the sparse and 9 conclusory allegation that Hinojosa and AEFH “engaged in conduct amounting to 10 injurious interference,” forcing Hinojosa and AEFH to parse through nearly thirty pages of 11 narrative to decipher exactly how she interfered with Medina’s supposed economic 12 opportunities. (Id. at ¶ 97). As such, the Complaint fails the pleading standard of Rule 8, 13 and thus “stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to 14 relief.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 677 (2009) (quoting Bell Atlantic Corp. v.
15 Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)).

16 Accordingly, even if Plaintiffs have pled the requisite elements for their claims to 17 relief (they have not) their claims should be dismissed under Rule 8(a)(2) for failure to 18 state them in a short and plain fashion. See Nevijel v. North Coast Life Ins. Co., 651 F.2d 19 671, 673 (9th Cir. 1981) (quoting Schmidt v. Herrmann, 614 F.2d 1221 (9th Cir. 1980)).

20 IV. CONCLUSION

21 For all the foregoing reasons, this matter should be stayed under 9 U.S.C. § 3 22 pending the arbitration between Plaintiffs and Trejo, or in the alternative, dismissed under 23 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) and/or 8(a)(2).
